University of the South, St. Augustine, Fla.

The University of the South, located in St. Augustine, Florida, is a historic institution of higher learning. The main building, known as the University Hall, is a grand structure with a classical facade, featuring a portico with tall columns. The building is situated on a grassy hill, and a small tree stands in the foreground. To the right of the main building, there is a smaller, two-story structure with a balcony and stairs leading up to it. The overall scene is peaceful and well-maintained.

Home of President James Madison - Montpelier Court House

desired to purchase a site for the construction of a home, or a home itself, opportunities abound throughout this section, which is now more attractive than ever before.

Nature has especially favored Northern Virginia in her gifts of climate and healthfulness. Protracted extremes of temperature are unknown, calling this a delightful all-the-year-round climate, with an early spring and a glorious autumn which keeps pastures green until mid-winter.

The mountains that divide the Piedmont section from the valley run in ridges which break the country into rolling hills of sufficient elevation to give a perfect natural drainage, making it one of the healthiest countries in the world.

Life in Northern Virginia is not all work. Its people still cultivate their vigorous pleasures which the nature of the country and the abundance of fine horse flesh offer them. Fox hunting is the king of sports.
